HOW THE REVIEW LIST IS BUILT

Ranked by how unusual today is for each trader

Every trader is compared with their own last two weeks, not with each other. Three questions, up to 3 points each.

1 · Loss

Lost far more than on a normal day for them?

T-018 usually moves about ±$158 a day. Today: −$1,517, four times their worst day so far.

2 · Size

Bigger position than they have ever held?

Measured in dollars against the account, not in contracts. T-023 traded 19 contracts as usual, but full-size crude instead of micro: 7× their usual size.

3 · Rule

Broke an account rule for the first time?

T-022 always held 12 ES. Today 32, against a 20-contract limit. Flat on the day, so a list of losers would miss them.

Big losers are not automatically on it: T-006 lost $3,214 today, but swings about ±$2,000 most days. For them, that is a normal Tuesday.

Data as of 25 Aug 2026, 9:30 Chicago · 45 traders with at least 5 sessions of history · P&L includes commissions and open positions

Tomorrow’s ten, and how far to trust them

#	Trader	What we saw today	Flags
1	T-023	Swapped micro crude for full-size; −$2,486	Loss · Size
2	T-022	32 ES vs. a 20-contract limit; 60× account	Size · Rule
3	T-009	Swapped MES for ES; worst day on record	Loss · Size
4	T-018	−$1,517 vs. a normal day of ±$158	Loss
5	T-019	−$1,559 vs. a normal day of ±$305	Loss
6	T-011	−$759 vs. ±$166; 3.0% of the account	Loss
7	T-012	−$724 vs. ±$174; worst day on record	Loss
8	T-020	−$2,398 vs. ±$542; 10 orders vs. usual 6	Loss
9	T-010	−$664 vs. ±$180; 2.7% of the account	Loss
10	T-008	−$459 vs. ±$151; worst day on record	Loss

You can rely on

- The same ten names under any sensible cut-offs
- P&L rebuilt fill by fill, with contract sizes and commissions, and checked two ways

Be careful with

- A 9:30 snapshot: the day can still turn
- Only two weeks of history per trader
- It does not know your actual loss limits yet

Off the list but worth a call: T-013 breaks their contract limit most days (a controls issue, not a bad day) · T-024 lost $1,580 on day one, with no history to compare.